Millinery

Opening!

March 30th and April 1st.

The styles and effects produced in Millinery this season represents the cream of what London, Paris and New York have to offer. New styles and new patterns arrange themselves in grand display. We miss absolutely nothing for which there is likely to be a demand, and whatever is worth your buying is here in immense assortment. Beyond question this is the store par excellence for Millinery of every description and values are away ahead of anything you will see or hear of else where. We believe in ample variety and have prepared for refined tastes.

DRESSMAKING!

This department is under experienced and capable management. Our modiste, Miss Mickle, whose equal is not in Manitoba or the Territories, has just arrived from the centre of fashion and is prepared to execute orders in the very latest style. We do work of the highest grade. Ladies at a distance can have a garment to fit them just as well as if they attended personally.

We solicit correspondence and are always pleased to send estimates. An immense consignment of summer dress goods that will suit the most fastidious.

B. CAREY.

Swell Suits

How times do change! Only a short time ago men thought that unless they paid a big price for a suit or coat, and were specially measured for it, that it would not fit them or look right.

Whatever reason there may have been for this opinion, there is no reason to-day. Times have changed—at least at this store. We want you to believe us when we say that we can show you suits and overcoats actually superior to many of the so-called ordered goods.

Our New Spring Clothing!

We have just as many shapes as there are different shaped men. Tall or short it makes no difference here. We have them to fit.

You'll find material here just the same as that shown by the custom tailors, bought direct from the mills in large quantities, hence cheaper and can be sold at less than one half the price. See our great leaders this week:—

Men's Suits, $ 6.00

Last fall a rancher living near Estevan lost 21 head of cattle. A few weeks ago Sergt. Byrne located eleven of the cattle near Colbertson, Montana, and succeeded in arresting a man named Webber suspected of complicity in the theft. Mr. T. C. Johnstone was instructed to institute extradition proceedings, but while waiting for the Soo train he received a telegram to the effect that the prison had waived his right and had been brought to Estevan. Insp. McDonald committed him for trial and he passed through on Wednesday en route to Mooseomin where Judge Wetmore will consider his case.

Three of our townsmen, Messrs. Jno. Riddell, E. H. Moorhouse and Wm. Armstrong, returned home last Friday after spending a week with their rancher friends at Dundurn. While away they were the guests of Hon. A. H. Court, Geo. Ross, Russell Wilson, Chas. Goode and J. Mawson, all ex-Moose Jawites, whom they found in the best of spirits and living on the fat of the land. They speak highly of the hospitality received and were surprised to find such a ranchers' paradise in the far north. One of the boys in the party informed them that they saw more cattle at Dundurn than they ever saw before at any one time. Some of the ranchers are wintering between 400 and 500 head of young steers. There is hay in abundance and every year there are several hundred tons left over until the next winter. One of the ranchers as feeding hay he had carried over for five years, so Dundurn steers never die of starvation. The principal hay field is about twelve miles long and each rancher owns a sufficient area to supply him for all time. Water is plentiful and convenient. The country is heavily wooded and well sheltered, so that three year old steers can run out all winter. Last year the three year old steers of this district brought $42.00 each. The returned visitors cannot say anything too good about the ranching district, and they recommend anybody seeking a good time to go to Dundurn.

MOOSE JAW '99.

Annual Convention of the Territorial Union of Christian Endeavor.

As we go to press this week, the Territorial Union of Christian Endeavor is holding its 1899 convention in the Methodist and Presbyterian churches at this place. Yesterday morning's No. 1 arrived on time with a large number of delegates from Eastern Assiniboia points, of which the following is a list, with the officers for 1898:

President, A. H. Smith, Mooseomin; Sec. Treas., Jno. Buchanan, Mooseomin; Convention Secretary, Jno. R. Green, Moose Jaw; Miss N. Neff, Medicine Hat; Rev. F. Tate, Estevan; Alex. Ross, Miss Callender, Mr. Lusk, Regina; Rev. A. A. Thompson, B.A., S. A. Campbell, W. R. Coventry, S. Chipperfield, Kenia; Rev. McAfee, Miss Waldbrooke, Messrs. Hutchinson and Waugh, Indian Head; J. W. Downey, A. N. Linnell, Summerberry; W. J. Mawson, M. McCallum, Mooseomin; Miss M. Boyd, Sherwood; Mrs. Dixon, Wide Awake.

The programme began yesterday morning with a song service, which was followed by a responsive service led by Rev. A. A. Thompson, (Psalm xix). The next morning was a Symposium, consisting of several papers on various topics, each being followed by a discussion of points raised. Then followed a Pastors' Hour, in which the pastors present took part. Bright and helpful addresses were given by Revs. W. A. Vrooman, McAfee, and others.

In the afternoon the chief feature of the programme was a paper by Rev. Mr. McAfee, of Indian Head. His subject was "Christ Our Model." His paper was rich in thought and suggestion to all followers of Christ. The various societies represented there reported through their delegates, after which an exceedingly helpful and practical paper by Mr. Branion, of Mooseomin, was read. It dealt with the topic "What the Every Day Endeavor May do," and abounded in good practical suggestions. The discussion following this reading was lively.

Last evening in the Presbyterian church Mayor Bogue delivered an address of welcome to the delegates, and Rev. A. E. Henry, of Brandon, followed with an address on "The Call to Western Endeavorers," which was well received. This morning the following officers were elected for the current year: President, A. H. Smith, Mooseomin (re-elected); 1st Vice, J. Brown, Mooseomin; 2nd Vice, Miss Grayson, Moose Jaw; Gen. Sec., J. Buchanan, Mooseomin (re-elected); Convention Secretary, Alex. Ross, Regina; Auditor, H. E. Dill, Mooseomin; Junior Sup't., Miss Aggie Thompson, (re-elected); Directors, Messrs. Magee and Tate, and Misses Tilden and Callender.

Regina has been chosen for the 1900 convention.

The Carnival.

Owing to the severity of the weather the closing carnival of the season, held last Friday night, was not such a success as the previous one. The attendance was not so large and the masqueraders did not turn out in such goodly numbers. The prizes, donated by Mr. Arnold, proprietor of the rink, were awarded as follows:—

Best Gents' Costume.—Percy McClelland, gold neck tie pin.
Best Ladies' Costume.—Miss Winnie McLean, pair kid gloves.
Best Boys' Costume.—Percy Ostrander, silk handkerchiefs.
Best Girls' Costume.—Marion Morrison, pair silk ties.

An Empress's Pen.

I heard an interesting fact regarding the former empress of the French the other night which shows in what direction her thoughts run. Whenever she has occasion to write anything about her lamented husband, she always uses the diamond pen which signed the treaty of Paris. All those who participated in this historical occasion wanted the pen as a memento. But so keen was the empress on possessing it that she begged that only one pen should be used, which she thought she had a right to retain as a souvenir. This was agreed to. The pen takes the form of a quill plucked from a golden eagle's wing and richly mounted with diamonds and gold.—Woman's Life.

A PURELY VEGETABLE PILL.—Purmac's Vegetable Pills are compounded from roots, herbs and solid extracts of known virtue in the treatment of liver and kidney complaints and in giving tone to the system whether enfeebled by overwork or deranged through excess in living. They require no testimony. Their excellent qualities are well known to all those who have used them and they commend themselves to dyspeptics and those subject to biliousness who are in quest of a beneficial medicine.

The Collier and Amen.

I once witnessed a phase of prompt evolution of practical and of devotional religion in Scotch shepherds on a communion Sabbath among the mountains. The churchyard was crowded with shepherds, accompanied by their dogs, which lay quietly asleep at the feet of their masters. The sermon was finished, the psalm had been sung, the final prayer was being offered, and there was no sign of impatience, but the moment the benediction commenced the devotional doggies all roused themselves, and before the "Amen" they were in marching order.—Newman Hall, an Autobiography.

Preparing For the Feast.

Lieutenant (to his orderly)—John, go to the restaurant and bring me a beefsteak with onions.
Orderly—Lieutenant, I take the liberty of reminding you that you are invited to dinner today.
"Where have I been invited to dinner?"
"You have been invited to dine with Mr. Holdfast."
"So I have to dine with the old miser? I must not go there unprepared. John, go to the restaurant and bring me two beefsteaks with onions."—London Tit-Bits.

From a quarry of soft redstone in southern Minnesota, the only stone probably of its kind in the world, the Indians for centuries obtained materials for the pipes, which were probably articles of commerce, as they are found in Indian graves from the Gulf to Canada.

We beg to call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills in this paper. The firm have also placed on the market Dr. Ward's Liver Pills, which have already proved to be a most excellent family medicine as a cure for constipation, dyspepsia, biliousness, etc. They are sold at 25c per box, or 5 for $1.00, or mailed on receipt of price by the Dr. Ward Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

They Don't Like Dawgs.

Footstep Freddy—Can you spare a trifle for a pore man, marm, wot ain't tasted no grub for three whole days? Just a drink and a bite will I ask.
Housewife—Then you've come to the right place for both, my man, because the pump there will give you drink and as for a bite I've only got to unchain the dog, and—
But Frederick had flitted.—Ally Sloper.

All Kinds.

It is only the same old story.
This life, so the cynics declare,
With its tales of adventure and glory
And its chapters of hoping and care.
But a story depends on the telling,
And each must strive on as he may
With his narrative, carefully dwelling
On its incidents day after day.
Some tell with an epic completeness,
Some are tragic and stately and slow,
And some give a lyrical sweetness
To the hours as they greet us and go,
And the world coldly pauses to edit
The efforts brought forth from the ranks,
And some achieve lucid and credit,
And the rest are declined without thanks.

A Prisoner's Release.

A Bright Youth of Eighteen Suffered so Badly from Asthma and Bronchitis that he was Forced to Remain in an Air-tight Room for Months at a Time. Dr. Clarke's Kola Compound Cured.

Mr. L. O. Lemieux, C. P. R. Engineer, 556 Alexander Street, Winnipeg, writes:—"My son, who is just eighteen years of age, has been a terrible sufferer from asthma and bronchitis during eight years. I have spent hundreds of dollars with doctors and many remedies, but he became worse each year. Many times he became so weak and the attacks so severe, that we thought each would be his last. For months at a time he has been confined to the house in an air-tight room, and continually treated with mustard plasters and medicines to keep him from choking. About the first of September we heard of Clarke's Kola Compound, and purchased in all seven bottles. While taking the first four the change was very slight, but shortly after taking the fifth he gradually became better, and on the sixth day, and since completing the treatment had been completely cured. He goes out in the severest Manitoba weather and exposes himself to severe tests, and the attacks have not returned. It certainly has been a blessing to him, and I feel it my duty to publicly thank it for any person troubled with this disease."

Clarke's Kola Compound is the only permanent cure for asthma yet discovered, and it has cured over 100,000 cases in Canada alone. Sold by all druggists. Sample sent to any address. Enclose 5-cent stamp. Address: The Griffin & Macpherson Co., 121 Church Street, Toronto.

Rat Prognosticators.

The old superstition, which has grown into an adage, that desert a ship which is no longer seaworthy, is still an article of faith with the fresh water sailors of the great lakes. Sundry well authenticated instances seem to justify this belief. Here is one. The Vernon was a three master which did a tramp business. Built in Buffalo in 1850, she was for many years regarded as one of the best craft on the lakes.

Late in the fall, about 15 years ago, she unloaded a cargo of grain in Buffalo, and reloaded with package freight for Chicago. She was about to sail one rough November night. Just before the lines were let off one of the seamen saw a rat run over the hawser to the wharf. In a moment another was seen. The seamen called others of the crew to see the unusual sight. Between 50 and 75 rats poured out of the ship and took refuge along the wharf. The crew refused to sail, but the captain was obstinate, skipped a fresh crew and sailed forthwith. The ship was lost with all hands.—Household Words.

A New Political Feature.
A new feature is noticeable in Georgia politics. In a certain county there were two candidates for ordinary. The first candidate made this unique announcement:

"If I am elected to the office, I promise to issue all marriage licenses to white and black—for 50 cents apiece."
But his opponent flouted him when he made this counter announcement:
"I'll see to it that all who vote for me are licensed to marry for 25 cents, and, furthermore, I'll help 'em pay for their furniture!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Vim

Vitality

DR. WARD'S BLOOD & NERVE PILLS

VIM—to work and to win—to keep a sane mind in a sound body—to laugh at worry.
VIGOR—to ward off disease—to conquer obstacles—to transmit health and strength to your posterity.
VITALITY—to resist the fearful strain and tension of modern life—to make up for the constant drains of overwork.
Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills confer all these essential qualities on the user.

THIS EVIDENCE IS AMPLE PROOF.
Before using Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills I felt weak, nervous and run down. I had lost weight steadily for some time; my circulation was poor; hands, feet and limbs were cold. I always felt weak and my muscles trembled. Now, after the use of one box of Dr. Ward's Pills, I feel like my old self. I have gained five pounds in weight and 100 per cent. muscular system is strong and my blood circulates vigorously. I have more comfort than I have experienced in years. Dr. Ward's Pills have done more for me than any medicine I ever took.

Unpleasant For the Duchess.

Philanthropic Duchess (who has taken several tickets for amateur concert, to two young ladies)—Would you like these tickets? I am not going myself, and I'm afraid you'll be awfully bored.
First Young Lady—I thank you so much, duchess, but my sister and I are going there—to sing!—Punch.

The great lung healer is found in that excellent medicine sold as Bickel's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It soothes and diminishes the sensibility of the membrane of the throat and air passages, and a sovereign remedy for all coughs, colds, hoarseness, pain or soreness in the chest, bronchitis, etc. It has cured many when supposed to be far advanced in consumption.

A Remarkable Letter.

A young lady of very extraordinary capacity lately addressed the following letter to her cousin: "We is all well, and mother's got his Terrix, brother Tom has got the Hupin Kangh, and sister Ann has got a balbe, and I hope these few lines will find you the same. Rite snue. Your affectionate aunt."—London Fun.

THOUSANDS LIKE HER.—Tena McLeod, Severn Bridge, writes: "I owe a debt of gratitude to DR. THOMAS' ELECTRIC OIL for curing me of a severe cold that troubled me nearly all last winter." In order to give a quickness to a hacking cough, take a dose of DR. THOMAS' ELECTRIC OIL thrice a day, or often if the cough spells render it necessary.

A Resourceful Bride.
"Can we afford," he faltered sadly, "to have a skeleton in our closet?"
"As for the woman, she wept, for they were indeed wretchedly poor, but she was not therefore altogether unresourceful.

"We might keep it in the hall and use it for a hatrack!" exclaimed the bride, for her mind was giving way under the constant effort to practice economy.—Detroit Journal.

Dear Sirs,—This is to certify that I have been troubled with a lame back for fifteen years.

Crimsonbeak—No; sometimes they fight.—Yonkers Statesman.

THEY NEVER KNEW FAILURE.—Careful observation of the effects of Par-melee's Vegetable Pills has shown that they act immediately on the diseased organs of the system and stimulate them to healthy action. There may be cases in which the disease has been long seated and does not easily yield to medicine, but even in such cases these pills have been known to bring relief when all other so-called remedies have failed. These assertions can be substantiated by many who have used the Pills, and medical men speak highly of their qualities.

They Reach The Kidneys.

Mr. Conrad Beyer's opinion

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS.

No one can be healthy with the kidneys in a diseased or disordered state. The poisonous Uric Acid which it is their duty to filter out of the blood, is carried into the system and produces Rheumatism, Headaches, Backaches and hundreds of ills and ailments.

Any one who has the slightest suspicion that the kidneys are not acting right should take Doan's Kidney Pills. They are the most effective kidney remedy known. Mr. Conrad Beyer, at E. K. Snyder's Shoe Store, Berlin, Ont., bears this out when he says: "Anyone suffering with kidney troubles could do better than take Doan's Kidney Pills, for they cured my wife who has been afflicted with pain in the back and other kidney troubles for a long time. They have helped a great many of my acquaintances in this town, and I must say they are the medicine that reach the kidneys with the best effects."

Mrs. A. Keirstead, Snider Mt., N.B., tells how her little boy suffered, and how B.B.B. cured him permanently.

FREDRICK KEIRSTEAD.

There is not a mother in this land who has a child suffering from skin disease in any form but will thank Mrs. Keirstead, Snider Mt., N.B., for telling of the remarkable manner in which her boy, Fredrick, was cured of one of the severest and most torturing of skin diseases by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters; and not only relieved and cured for the time being, but, mark you, after eight years the disease has shown no sign of returning.

The following is Mrs. Keirstead's letter:—"With gratitude I can testify to the wonderful curative powers of Burdock Blood Bitters. Eight years ago our little son, Fredrick, was afflicted with salt rheum and was in a dreadful condition. His legs, from the soles of his feet to his body, were entirely raw, and ran a bloody water, which appeared to burn and itch until he was often in great agony.

"After trying several remedies, we resolved to give B.B.B. a trial.
"You can imagine with what delight and gratitude we saw our boy entirely cured after using one bottle and part of the second. We gave him the remainder of the second bottle, and from that time till the present he has never had a sign of salt rheum or a sick day. You need not wonder that I think there is no other medicine can equal Burdock Blood Bitters to purify the blood and build up the health and strength."

A DYSPETIC'S RELEASE.
Suffering From This Distressing Malady for Many Months—Found Only One Medicine to Help Him.

The farming community at Port Robinson, and many miles around, are intimately acquainted with Mr. Harvey Horton. He is a young man, only 23 years of age, who farms in summer and follows a steam thrasher in autumn and winter. While yet so young he has had his share of pain and sickness. Our reporter hearing of Mr. Horton's affliction sought an interview with him.

When he learned the reporter's errand he readily consented to impart full details, which are given practically in his own words. "I do not court newspaper notoriety," said he, "yet I am not afraid to say a kind word for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. In the summer of 1897 I was sadly afflicted with stomach trouble, a deranged liver and general debility. My entire system was in a morbid condition. I felt as though I had an oppressive weight on my stomach and eating was sometimes followed by nausea. My nights were made hideous by unpleasant dreams. I tried a good physician. He doctored me for liver trouble and dyspepsia, but without avail, and for a year I could find no remedy that could cure me. I felt perfectly worn out, had no strength, appetite or energy. I was prevailed upon by a friend from a distance to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I purchased two boxes in June, 1898. Although I thought myself beyond cure, yet the first box had such a surprising effect that I took courage as my strength began gradually to return. I continued taking the pills and now, after using nine boxes, I feel as good a man as ever and am in splendid flesh. I can eat, digest and sleep well, while before all food soured on my stomach and caused awful distress. I can now enjoy life and am satisfied that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have saved me from untold suffering."

Proper Recompense.
"No, Miss Petherbridge," said the young man, folding his arms and looking sternly at her, "you can't be a 'sister to me.' If I'm not good enough to get into your family, you can't get into mine."

Saying which, and picking up his hat and gloves, he walked away with his head held stiffly erect.—Chicago Tribune.

TOWN COUNCIL.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee Report on Fire Appliances, Etc.

The regular fortnightly meeting of the town council was held in the council chamber on Monday evening. Present: Mayor Bogue and Councillors Hitchcock, Simpson, Munns and Grayson. A communication was received from J. M. Parsons, offering to give the town a steam fire engine and supplies in exchange for chemical and $3,500.00; from the Ontario Pump Co., re waterworks; and from McRobbie, of Brandon, re chemicals. The above were referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

Messrs. Mitchell & Hembroff wrote withdrawing their tender for the purchase of the town hall, as they could not accept the conditions imposed by the Council, and offering to renew the lease of same on former terms. The communication was referred to the Board of Works.

The accounts of A. B. Carl, dog tags, $4.00; and R. Snoddy, repairing scales, $3.00, were ordered to be paid.

A largely signed petition was presented asking the Council to purchase the brass band instruments at $150.00. On motion the petition was referred to the Finance Committee.

J. T. Simpson, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, submitted the following report, clauses 1 and 2 of which were referred back for reconsideration and the remainder was received and adopted:

To the Mayor and Town Council.
Your Committee on Fire, Water and Light beg to report

(1) That the chemical engine has been thoroughly overhauled and repaired where necessary. We would suggest a coat of paint would add to the appearance and durability of the machine. In overhauling the engine we found one and a half pounds of lead strips lodged in one of the discharge pipes which rendered that end of the cylinder of the engine entirely useless.

(2) We would suggest that in order to do the engine justice and furnish the most efficient fire protection with the appliances now on hand it is necessary to have a competent man always in charge of the engine to see that it is properly looked after and cared for and ready for work. He should either sleep in the engine room or close to it, and he might act as chief of the fire brigade. We find great difficulty in getting a fire brigade formed principally because no one cares to assume the responsibility of chief. If a competent man could be got to take charge of the engine and act as chief of the fire brigade, there would be no difficulty in getting volunteer firemen, and unless the engine is properly managed it is like any other piece of machinery, entirely useless for the purpose for which it was intended.

(3) We recommend that the Clerk be authorized to write to Sir William Van Horne asking him what terms, if any, the town of Moose Jaw can make with the C.P.R. to combine on a system of waterworks for the use of the town and the C.P.R.

(4) We also recommend that the communications of John England, C. E., of Winnipeg, and E. L. English, Winnipeg, be acknowledged, and that they be advised that we are not at present prepared to go to any expense for plans and specifications for a system of waterworks.

(5) That the Gutta Percha Co. be informed that we are not in need of any supplies at present.

(6) That the Montreal Pipe Foundry be asked to send us quotations on 4, 6 and 8 inch cast iron pipe, hydrants and lead for joints, f.o.b. on cars Moose Jaw, giving us the weight per foot of each different size of pipe and hydrant.

(7) That the mayors of Calgary, Lethbridge, Brandon and Portage la Prairie, Tracey, city engineer of Vancouver, and O. A. Graydon, city engineer of London, Ont., be communicated with and asked if they find a system of waterworks with hydrants, and waterworks with tanks with a steam fire engine the most satisfactory and which they would recommend, taking into consideration our cold climate.

(8) We would further recommend that the town solicitor be asked to inform the Council what their borrowing powers are, and if they have not the power to borrow $30,000.00 to advise the Council what steps are necessary to take in order to extend the term of a loan over a period of fifty (50) years.

J. T. SIMPSON, Chairman.

Moved by A. Hitchcock, seconded by J. T. Simpson, and carried, That the Clerk be instructed to notify H. U. Borison to deliver cord wood at town hall in accordance with his agreement with acting chairmen McDonald as per his letter of Dec. 15th last.

Moved by J. T. Simpson, seconded by J. T. Simpson, and carried, That the Mayor, Councillors Hitchcock and Grayson, the Secretary-Treasurer and Assessor be a committee on assessment.

MISERY IN A HOSPITAL.

Rheumatism made life a burden—South-American Rheumatic Cure lifted it—A Permanent Cure.

The life of John E. Smith, of Amasa Wood Hospital, St. Thomas, was one long round of misery, he was so afflicted with rheumatism. He tried all manner of cures without much benefit. After having taken half a bottle of South American Rheumatic Cure he found great relief, and four bottles cured him permanently.

Boharm.

Your Boharm correspondent that wrote last week, who was ashamed to sign a name, did not mention his brother's going to town to learn the blacksmith trade with Mr. McDonald. Nor did he mention himself and youngest sister, followed by a new coming preacher, who, while coming home from Pioneer school house one night last week, by some means or other got off the trail and in dismay took to the road. He says the owl's light, which proved to be the headlight of an east-bound freight train. The result was that they found themselves some distance east of the elevator, along the track. Mr. R. K. Thomson is moving his stock out from town and intends keeping batch until spring. Mr. T. Arnold is on the sick list this week. He says the owl has turned into a white horse, which is to arrive about May 1st. Nearly all our people have returned from the east and we expect another correspondent soon, who may have a good supply of poetry for us. OBSERVER.

DEATH'S CLOSE NEIGHBOR.

For Twenty Years Mrs. Roadhouse Was a Subject of Dread Heart Disease—Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart Gave her Relief in Less Than Half an Hour.

Mrs. Roadhouse, of Williscroft, Ont., is 54 years old. For more than 20 years she had been a great sufferer from heart disease. The pain and palpitation at times lasting for five hours and so acute that often she wished for death that she might find relief from her sufferings, but she was attracted to Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart through reading of the wonderful cures wrought by it. She commenced using it and in one of her most distressing heart spasms found complete relief inside of thirty minutes. She swears by it today as the only heart cure.

Caron.

Caron, March 29.—There are a number of our neighbors and friends laid up with the grip, amongst them being Mr. Wilson, Mrs. Jno. Hans, Colin Yates, and Johnny and Myrtle Hans, who have nearly all been under the doctor's care some time. We are glad to hear that a number of them are improving. Mrs. Chas. Young, who was visiting her son in Moose Jaw, returned home last week. Mr. A. Stoneman, from the Hills, has been visiting in the neighborhood. A number of new settlers are expected to arrive the early part of next month, amongst the number being the Messrs. Hayes and Ferguson, of Palmerston, Ont., with car loads of settlers' effects. A first-class entertainment took place at the Caron section house on the 17th inst. The proceeds, which amounted to $15.00, were in aid of a public library for the district. Amongst those taking part in the programme were the best local talent and the day school scholars of the district. The programme being a rather long one, refreshments were furnished by the hostess, Mrs. Walter Vicary, during intermission. Mrs. Vicary rightly deserves the hearty vote of thanks tendered her for her hospitality. At the close of the programme a committee of three were appointed to purchase books and magazines. The meeting dispersed by singing "God Save the Queen." ON LOOKER.

"She comes from the past and revisits
my room;
She looks as she did then, all beauty
and bloom,
So smiling and tender, so fresh and so fair,
And under she sits in my case-
bottomed chair."

Many a man sits silent and alone in a home of mourning and conjures up before his eyes the face and form of the woman who was once a loving wife and a faithful helpmate. In thousands of such cases the wife might still be alive and well and happy, had the man been not only a good husband, but a good adviser. Women shrink from the ordeal of consulting a physician. They shudder at the thought of submitting to the obnoxious examinations insisted upon by most physicians.

In the majority of cases they have access to this hesitancy about consulting their husbands. A wise man will understand at once that trouble of this description will soon break down a woman's general health. He will understand that a specialist of eminence and world-wide reputation should be called in to treat her. Dr. R. V. Pierce, for thirty years chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., is one of the most eminent and widely-known specialists in the world. With the assistance of a staff of able physicians, he has prescribed for many thousands of ailing women. He has discovered a wonderful medicine for women, that may be used in the privacy of their homes. It is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It cures surely, speedily and permanently all weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration, soothes pain, gives rest to the tortured nerves, and checks debilitating drains.

Eastview.

Eastview, March 29.—The weather for the past week has been somewhat stormy and not at all springlike, but an agreeable change is looked for soon. Owing to the heavy snow storm the trails throughout the district are not easily travelled, on account of which business at present is rather quiet. James Johnson made a trip to the Capital last week for a grist and reports satisfactory returns. Robt. Stalker, who arrived from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., a short time ago, has decided to take up a homestead and commence farming operations as soon as the season opens. Wm. Mephin and family are expected to arrive from Collingwood, Ont., in a few days. Mr. Mephin brings with him a car load of effects, with the intention of settling in this neighborhood. We extend to him a hearty welcome. Judging from the present prospects the influx of settlers into the country this spring will be great, and we are pleased to note that our neighborhood is likely to get its share. James Wilson, one of our enterprising young farmers, has commenced the erection of a "shack" on his homestead, where he intends to reside in future, whether alone or in partnership we are not prepared to say. But be that as it will, we wish for him a prosperous future. SOBIE.

A Letter From Swift Current.

Swift Current, March 28.—A postponed meeting, through unavoidable circumstances, was held here on March 23rd in the schoolhouse at 10:30 o'clock, called by the overseer of Statute Labor District No. 383, for the ratemakers of said district to determine in what way their money was to be spent on permanent improvements within or outside of the district. After a few minutes waiting for every one to attend, the overseer took the chair and after stating the object of the meeting as briefly as possible, told the ratemakers present to fill the chair with one of their own number, which he immediately vacated. Wm. Alexander was called to the chair, which he promptly and ably filled, and called on Chas. Reid to act as secretary, which he did in a masterly manner. Several resolutions were moved and seconded by those present, and after a short discussion on the lines of equal rights to every one and extra privileges to none, the residents claimed they had as good a right in this case, as any others had, to poll their vote; but our constitutional laws come in and knock right and justice out of their way altogether. However a satisfactory conclusion was arrived at, and the chairman handed to the Overseer a list of the work proposed when the time comes. This concluded the meeting. A RESIDENT.

THE DOCTOR'S CONSOLATION.

Told Mr. Hill He Was a Dying Man, But South American Nervine Cured Him—Hope Was Abandoned.

Mr. W. J. Hill, a well-known man in Bracebridge, Ont., suffered for years from liver trouble, dyspepsia and nervous weakness. He says he tried nearly every remedy in the market which claimed to meet his case without success. He was told by a physician that he was a dying man. He began taking South American Nervine, and found almost immediate benefit from its use. He continued using it, and to-day says he would stake his life on this great remedy as a cure for all like sufferers to himself.

Raise Hogs!

Why not raise more hogs and get better value for your coarse grains? The large amount of money going out of this Province to the U.S. and Eastern Canada for Hams and Bacon does not seem like a good business proposition. During 1898 there was 1,919,784 lbs. of cured meats and lard imported from the U.S. to Winnipeg alone. If it pays farmers to sell their live hogs south of the line at 3 to 3½c live weight, with the price obtainable in Manitoba it should prove a good investment for Manitoba farmers.

MANTOBA LEGISLATURE.

ADDRESS IN REPLY TO SPEECH FROM THE THRONE.

Mr. Burrows, the Mover, and Mr. Young, the Seconder of the Address.

MONDAY, MARCH 20TH.

The house met for the transaction of business this afternoon, when most of the members were present to listen to the addresses of the various members on the speech from the throne, delivered last Thursday. Mr. T. A. Burrows, member for Dauphin, moved the address in reply, and Mr. C. A. Young, member for Deseronto, seconded the motion.

Mr. Burrows acknowledged the honor of being chosen by the government to move the address, as an honor to his constituency rather than to himself, as he had the largest, and probably the most important division in the province, and its rapid progress had attracted much attention from all parts of Canada. Proceeding, he thought Lord and Lady Aberdeen were entitled to the respect and consideration of even the democratic people in this country, they being the representatives of Her Majesty, whom all Liberals delighted to honor. Canada had benefited by their sojourn amongst us, and we could not but be proud of their presence in our midst. He was a member of the House of Commons, and he was proud to recall the evidence that Manitoba had prospered, as well as all other parts of the Dominion. The land sales of the C. P. R. Co. were a fair indication of the movement of people and immigrants, and in 1896 that company sold 75,000 acres of land, but in 1898 this had doubled, and amounted to 149,000 acres. The volume of trade in the banking house at Winnipeg, had increased from $64,000,000 in 1896 to $90,654,000 in 1898, and this not counting in the value of crops which would have been moved out had the weather been so kind. In 1897, 1141 homesteads were taken up in Manitoba, in 1898 this number had increased to 2,013, indicating the large influx of population. In many cases the values of land had increased 100 per cent, owing to the increase in the railway. The government had secured from the Dominion government during their tenure of office no less than $200,000 acres of swamp lands, which some day would form a valuable asset of the province. The government had adopted the method of selection of these lands by the Conservative government by which Manitoba had been charged nine cents an acre for selection charges, while the Dominion government had estimated that there were within the boundaries of the province at least 7,000,000 acres of swamp lands, which should all be set over to our local government to administer. It was unfortunate for the province that the senate refused to consent to the $300,000 advance in the selection of the swamp lands, as to enable the government here to properly assist the many new schools opening up. Manitoba had always contended for the control of these lands, and the Conservative government had refused to advance $30,000 for the same purpose, and yet the senate blocked the further advance when the schools were struggling. The children of to-day were as much entitled to share of this year's fund as the children of fifty years hence. He hoped the senate would reverse its decision when another bill was introduced this year. Regarding the railway policy of the Greenway government, he said that the government had assisted the construction of 550 miles of railway at the statutory bonus of $1,750 per mile, and had so arranged a guarantee of the bonds on the Dauphin and South-Eastern railways as to enable these railways to be constructed, and that without costing the province a cent. There are still many miles of railway needed, and he wanted a railway for Gimli. He said there was a proposed line from the Dauphin to the north boundary of the province would be extended a considerable distance, as he wanted to give Manitoba a chance to complete the road to the Hudson Bay, of which he was so proud. He claimed Manitoba had the right to that territory, and hoped she would get it. He had seen a large number of the Galician immigrants come into his constituency, and had plenty of opportunities of noting their ways and methods of work, and he believed them to be the equal of foreign immigrants that had come into Manitoba in years past. There were great pleasures to be found among them, and they were found to be of a very satisfactory condition, as he found from the grain exchange report the storage capacity outside of Fort William was 11,000,000 bushels. The railway companies also benefited from being able to make better use of their rolling stock, and he regretted that prices of grain were so low. He warned farmers about using damp wheat for seed. Too much attention could not be given to railway facilities. 188 miles had been built during 1898, and there were no lines duplicating each other. The government needed increased revenue, and touched upon the fact that the school grants last year were over $200,000 against $60,000 when Mr. Greenway came into power. He wanted to see easier terms given to farmers on the sale of school lands. He was of the opinion that the majority of people in Manitoba would vote for the abolition of the senate.

Mr. Roblin, the leader of the Opposition, followed. He could not endorse all the others had said, because they were based on false premises, and his conclusions were accordingly wrong; he would give them their meed of praise for what they had done. This was one of the two occasions on which any member of the house could take up any public question he believed the government had shown considerable ingenuity in hiding all they could rather than in giving to the public by the speech from the throne all the legislation they had in view. He did not know, but that was his opinion regarding the speech from the throne at Ottawa. He presumed this would be the last session of the house, and the government had some important legislation to submit to the people. If it was ready, they should proceed to pass it, and not think of making a speech. He did not think his actions had rebounded to his credit, and he hoped that Lord Minto would follow the clearly cut line left by Lord Aberdeen. He was pleased to see that Manitoba and Canada prospered, every man should be, but he denied that the local government were entitled to any credit for it. If any government was entitled to credit, it was the Dominion government for he had been forced to the conclusion that the tariff had increased the protection rather than reduced it on agricultural implements, because now the manufacturers got their raw materials from the Dominion government, and were prosperous under the present policy he was satisfied, especially as they enjoyed the remarkable reduction of 10 per cent on coal oil. Mr. Roblin believed the local government in getting its seats from among the Anglo-Saxon race were doing a splendid work and entitled to all credit, but he could not agree with the whole sale importation of Galicians and Poles, and he thought it would be better to consider whether or not it was wise to have the franchise the same as other people in Manitoba. He was disgusted with the sentimental sobbing of some people in Winnipeg over these classes, and he did not wish to make political capital out of the question, but he wished to raise his voice against the importation of these people, while he gave all credit to Mr. Greenway for the class of people he brought in. He said that the government had retained to build the Hudson Bay railway, and he would support the government in any scheme to build a road to the bay. (Cheers and applause.)

Mr. Greenway moved the adjournment of the house until Tuesday, March 21st.

Attorney General Cameron presented the report of his department. Notice was given that the following bills would be introduced: Acts respecting election of members of the legislature; to amend the Real Property Act; to amend the master and servant Act; to amend the Surrogate Court Act; to make better provision for keeping and inspecting municipal accounts; to amend the public schools Act; to amend the municipal act and the assessment act.

TUESDAY, MARCH 21ST.

Hon. Premier Greenway continued the debate when he rose for business this afternoon, and said that his government courted the fullest possible discussion upon their policy. The opposition for the last two years had been of the greatest value to the government, and he would thank them for their confidence now, and say that the present house did not expire until February, 1900, and he would pledge himself that before a general election he would resign as a member of the Dominion House of Commons. Sir Charles Tupper's house at Ottawa expired in April, 1896, and the election did not take place until June of the same year. Lord Aberdeen had been a member of the Dominion House of Commons, and as a constitutional governor did all he did on the advice of his ministers, who were Sir Charles Tupper and others. He justified the government's refusal to accept the hundred of appointments proposed by Tupper after the people had defeated him at the polls. Turning to the immigration question, Mr. Greenway chided Mr. Roblin for his stand against the foreign immigrants, and said that the Conservative predecessors in office were responsible for them in the first place. Mr. Greenway defended in a vigorous manner the Irish and the Scotch, and quoted Lord Aberdeen's words, "I am not a native-born man, but I am a Canadian." He said that the government had the right hand of fellowship to a free country. The honorable gentleman reviewed the various leaders of the opposition since 1888, and regretted that the present leader was soon to have his head cut off. He did not know just how to meet the different ideas of the different leaders of the opposition from time to time, but he would refer to the telegram in which Irishmen were referred to as part of the "Sifton international menagerie," and also the abuse of the French because they had dared to support the Liberal. He charged the opposition for disloyalty in displacing the usual motto "God Save the Queen" and using instead "Remember Rago." He expected 1,500 settlers for Manitoba to come from Muskoka this year, and he hoped the government would have the opposition commend his efforts in this direction. Mr. Greenway clearly pointed out the necessity for an advance from the school lands fund. It was Mr. Minto's money for Manitoba's schools, and the senate had no right to refuse the money bill. He would leave Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald and Mr. Roblin to the mercies of the people for approving of the action of the senate. The schools had increased from about 500 to nearly 1,200 in the last ten years, and he would not like to be compelled to withdraw the grant to public schools, and he would not like to be twice the length of time in debating against it have to run the children at the end of that time have no debt, while the present generation have to do all the building and suffer taxation. This is the time when above all times the money for schools was needed. The fund would probably realize $15,000,000 when all land was sold, and Manitoba asked for a little 2 per cent of the whole. If the money was in Manitoba's hand she could get 6 per cent interest on it. He said that the only way to get the money was to allow 3 per cent interest on the land sold.

Touching on the railway question, Mr. Greenway recalled a resolution moved by Mr. Fisher, seconded by Mr. Maitly in 1894 requiring radical changes in the senate or its abolition. He said that the senate had been "Wipe it out." The senate had done wonderful work in the past; they had charge of all divorces, and had defeated Casey's bicycle bill by which the railway companies were compelled to carry bicycles free of charge. Referring to the statement of the opposition that the National Policy had made Canada prosperous, he said that it was introduced for the purpose of dividing the people on political lines, and when it was charged that the Liberals had done nothing towards mitigating the evils, he would point out that their time and barbed wire were the first to get a six months' trial, but what they did not do when they were in power. His government had constructed 800 miles of railway and by the last of September the rates on grain would have been reduced from 24 cents per 100 to 14 cents per 100, and he would not be satisfied until the rate was reduced to 10 cents. Mr. Macdonald said it could not be done, but he said Mr. Greenway said it could, and with the help of the people of Manitoba he would do it.

Mr. James Fisher confined his remarks altogether to the refusal of the senate to advance money to Manitoba, and he said that the government had a long dissertation on the principle on which the trust was held, and claimed that the Dominion government did right in presenting the bill for the railway, but he said that the proper way of doing it was to pass a bill enabling the government to make advances without going especially to the house each time. It would be better to give the government the power to make advances in the matter. Manitoba should have the money.

Mr. Fraser moved the adjournment of the debate.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 22.

Mr. Fraser, of North Brandon, continued the debate when he rose from the throne on Wednesday afternoon. He congratulated the members for Dauphin and Deseronto. He was particularly on the railway policy of the government, and said that the Liberal platform of 1888 had been the most liberal encouragement to railways for local development and outlet for exportation, meaning that by Hudson Bay and almost as good as they secured power they proceeded to carry out their pledges. He hoped that the member for Russell would soon be back in the ranks of the party. Mr. Fraser drew attention to the wonderful development of the constituency of Dauphin and pointed out the advantages secured by the building of the Southwestern railway and the recently built branches of the C. P. R. He said that the value of land was of great value as a colonization road and had enhanced the value of land by millions of dollars. The speaker pointed out the lack of railway advantages in the past, and said that the government had a duty to do. He said that the duties had been materially reduced, and he would like to see the duty of 20 per cent (reduced from 35) further reduced. Applied to Manitoba he said: We have not got all we desired but the enemies of protection are in the breachworks. He drew attention to the fact that the railway in the province was 341 miles of railway in the province; to-day, 1,735 miles. He congratulated the province on having a farmer premier. There were two reasons why the province could not make Manitoba a perfect paradise, the one was it was a little cold, and the other was the exchequer was a little short of funds.

Mr. Sifton moved the adjournment of the debate.

Mr. Sifton presented a petition from the incorporation of the Manitoba, Midland and Western railway.

THURSDAY, MARCH 23rd.

Mr. Jonasson was the first speaker on Thursday, continuing the debate on the railway question. He said that the railway was of great importance, the railway policy and the foreign immigration question. Railways must be constructed in advance of settlement. He regretted that the mover and seconder had not mentioned the country between Lakes Winnipeg and Winnipegosis, one of the worst provinces without a mile of C. P. R. It was to go through that country and many settlers had gone to the country for twenty years. To-day 2,000 people anxiously awaited the railway at Gimli. The land is not a big swamp. Fuel and fish is plentiful. The projected Hudson's Bay railway would have been a benefit. The land east of Lake Winnipeg will be found valuable for minerals and timber. He advocated a post on Hudson's Bay. As to immigration, the Galicians and Poles had assimilated and the Galicians and Poles might be expected to do so. The interest count Tolstol took in the latter was a sufficient guarantee that they were worthy.

Mr. Johnstone congratulated the member for Andrews on his very intelligent and instructive address. He suggested that a railway could not be built to every man's door. New Zealand had built the railway to the coast, and the Northern Pacific extension would have been built ten years ago. The money spent on the Southwestern outside the province should have been put to better use. He then referred to claims of settlers or contractors and said that he had no objection to the money being paid to the settlers and suggested relief. He believed Manitoba would far better without the senate. It was organized to protect the province, and he believed the senate was aggressive against Manitoba, and would be glad to abolish the senate. If this was done the only redress would be the Privy Council in England. He believed the province had a right to the school lands and the money in them for the time was now when part of the money could be used. He suggested amendments to the constitution of the senate and suggested that the house should have a committee on government to give prohibition of the liquor traffic. He differed with Mr. Fraser in the comparison of the trade of Canada with the United States. He said that the present government credit for the grant to schools, but he said aid to railways because the money was borrowed.

Mr. Fowler deprecated the introduction of Dominion politics into the house. Agricultural implements are cheaper to-day than before. When the Mennonites were brought in every argument was heard which is now used against the Doukhobors. He took issue with the use of the word "a great deal of crime in the wisdom of the government's railway policy." The assessed value of several towns along the Morris-Brandon branch of the N. P. R. had been more than doubled in the last year. When the present government came into power there were 341 miles of railway in the province; to-day, 1,735 miles. He congratulated the province on having a farmer premier. There were two reasons why the province could not make Manitoba a perfect paradise, the one was it was a little cold, and the other was the exchequer was a little short of funds.

Mr. Sifton moved the adjournment of the debate.

FRIDAY, MARCH 24th.

Mr. Sifton presented a petition from the incorporation of the Manitoba, Midland and Western railway. He said that the railway was of great importance, the railway policy and the foreign immigration question. Railways must be constructed in advance of settlement. He regretted that the mover and seconder had not mentioned the country between Lakes Winnipeg and Winnipegosis, one of the worst provinces without a mile of C. P. R. SATURDAY, MARCH 25th.

Mr. Sifton presented a petition from the incorporation of the Manitoba, Midland and Western railway. He said that the railway was of great importance, the railway policy and the foreign immigration question. Railways must be constructed in advance of settlement. He regretted that the mover and seconder had not mentioned the country between Lakes Winnipeg and Winnipegosis, one of the worst provinces without a mile of C. P. R. It was to go through that country and many settlers had gone to the country for twenty years. To-day 2,000 people anxiously awaited the railway at Gimli. The land is not a big swamp. Fuel and fish is plentiful. The projected Hudson's Bay railway would have been a benefit. The land east of Lake Winnipeg will be found valuable for minerals and timber. He advocated a post on Hudson's Bay. As to immigration, the Galicians and Poles had assimilated and the Galicians and Poles might be expected to do so. The interest count Tolstol took in the latter was a sufficient guarantee that they were worthy.

Mr. Johnstone congratulated the member for Andrews on his very intelligent and instructive address. He suggested that a railway could not be built to every man's door. New Zealand had built the railway to the coast, and the Northern Pacific extension would have been built ten years ago. The money spent on the Southwestern outside the province should have been put to better use. He then referred to claims of settlers or contractors and said that he had no objection to the money being paid to the settlers and suggested relief. He believed Manitoba would far better without the senate. It was organized to protect the province, and he believed the senate was aggressive against Manitoba, and would be glad to abolish the senate. If this was done the only redress would be the Privy Council in England. He believed the province had a right to the school lands and the money in them for the time was now when part of the money could be used. He suggested amendments to the constitution of the senate and suggested that the house should have a committee on government to give prohibition of the liquor traffic. He differed with Mr. Fraser in the comparison of the trade of Canada with the United States. He said that the present government credit for the grant to schools, but he said aid to railways because the money was borrowed.

izing the merits and abilities of Lord Aberdeen did not regret his departure. Speaking of Mr. Macdonald's loyalty he remembered him twice as a soldier. All the house rejoiced in the prosperity of the Dominion. He welcomed immigration from eastern Canada, United States, Great Britain or Germany, but drew the line at the class now infesting the country. The Doukhobors he understood took no share of the country's defense, if they would accept these responsibilities as British subjects he would hold out his hand to them. The senate had been of great service to Canada. It had thrown out several Conservative bills when occasion arose. If the present party remained in power long enough they would be largely composed of their friends, but still would have his support.

The debate was adjourned on motion of Mr. Jonasson, seconded by Mr. Macdonald. Several bills received their first reading: Hon. Mr. Cameron—A bill respecting the winding up of joint stock companies. A bill to consolidate the real property act. A bill to amend the law relating to the sale of land. A bill to make better provision for keeping and inspecting municipal accounts. Hon. Mr. McKie—A bill to amend the municipal act. A bill to amend the assessment act.

Thursday—A bill to amend the municipal act. Hon. Mr. Cameron, Friday—A bill to amend the church lands act. Mr. McKie, Thursday—A bill to amend the Manitoba Building Society act. Mr. Sifton, Friday—A bill for the insurance of standing grains against damage by hail.

Mr. Norris presented a petition asking for the incorporation of the Manitoba, Midland and Western railway.

JOHN ARTHUR'S WARD, OR THE DETECTIVE'S DAUGHTER

By the author of "A Woman's Crime," "The Missing Diamond," etc.

"I have no intention of neglecting any one of you four," she says. "Edward Percy told you last night that I would burn certain papers in your presence. I am quite ready to keep my word. There will be no use for them after to-night. But I shall not stifle the testimony of living witnesses against you."

Then she raised her voice slightly. "Dr. Le Guise bring in your patient."

John Arthur paled with fear and rage stands upon the threshold of the drawing room closely attended by the Professor and Henry.

Then Madeline turned to the now terror-stricken Cora. "Come forward Mrs. John Arthur," she says scornfully. "It is time to let you speak!"

When Edward Percy turns his eyes toward Claire she has instinctively moved nearer to Madeline's side at the same time favoring him with a look so fraught with contempt that the villain lowers his eyes, and turns away his face. As Madeline now addresses the fair adventuress, Claire again moves. She has been standing directly between Cora and her Nemesis. Now she takes up a position quite apart from her friends, and near the officer who guards Lucian Davlin on the right.

Cora sees that all is lost. But she recalls the promises of safety given her by Lucian, and nerves herself for a last attempt at cool insolence. Her quick wit has taken in the situation. Now she understands why Madeline has led Davlin on, and why her hatred of him is so intense. Now she knows the meaning of the words that have been spoken mysteriously: "Lucian Davlin is my lover, but I am his bitterest foe." Now, as she steps forward, the hate she feels shining in her eyes, and with a growing air of reckless bravado she glances at him, Cora, and Lucian Davlin's bitter foe.

"Cora," the name comes from the lips of John Arthur, almost in a whisper. "Tell us what you know of this man," Madeline says, pointing to Edward Percy; "and be brief."

"Miss Arthur," she says, with a malicious gleam in her eyes, "this will interest you. I knew that man ten years ago. I was making my first venture out in the world, and it was a very bad one. I fell in love with his pretty face, and married him. Before long I discovered that matrimony was a mania of Mr. Percy's—by-the-by, he called under another name then. I found out that another wife was living; a woman he had married before money. Well, being sensitive, I took offense, and after a little, I ran away from him, carrying with me the certificates of his two marriages, which I had taken some pains to get possession of. After that I went to Europe."

Cora pauses suddenly and glances toward Madeline.

"After that you went to Europe. You may pass over the foreign tour, and take up the story five years later," suggests Madeline, coldly.

"After that, I went to Europe," echoes Cora. "And five years later found me in Gotham."

"Be explicit now, please; no omissions," commands Madeline.

"Five years ago, then," resumes Cora, "that gentleman there," motioning to Davlin, but never turning her face to him, "knew that man one day with the information that my dear husband was a rich man, thanks to some deceased relative, and that his other wife was dead. For some reason this other marriage had been kept very secret, and my friend there argued that in case anything happened to my husband, I should be his widow, and claim his fortune. Well, Mr. Percy did not die, more's the pity. Instead of that he lived and squandered his money in less than three years. He was hurt somehow and a certain Mr. Philip Girard was falsely accused and convicted for attempted murder."

"Who was the real assassin?" asked Madeline, sternly.

"Lucian Davlin," emphatically.

Madeline turns swiftly to Percy. "Mr. Percy, explain, if you wish to lighten your own burden, by what means did that man persuade you to let him go free?"

"By threatening me with an action for—"

"Bigamy?" finished Cora.

"I am letting these people hear you tell these things because I want that you should be pointing to Arthur, who had long since collapsed into a big chair—" to hear all this from your own lips," says Madeline.

Turning again to Cora she says—

"The certificates you had stolen from Edward Percy, which I told you were his, and secure himself from danger. Am I correct?"

"Yes," replies Cora, casting a malignant glance from one to the other of the accused men.

"Very good. Now we will pass on four or five years. You were in some little trouble last June, Mrs. Arthur. Explain how you came to Bellair."

"How?"

"Yes, for what purpose. And at whose instigation?"

Cora hesitated and Davlin moved uneasily.

"Don't think that you will damage your cause by making a full statement," suggested Miss Payne meaningly. Answer my questions please."

Again Cora glances at Davlin. Then turning toward Madeline she assumes an air of defiant recklessness, and answers the questions promptly. "I came at Lucian Davlin's suggestion, and because he had induced me to think that I could easily become what I am."

"And that is—"

"Mrs. Arthur of Oakley!" with a mocking laugh.

The old man in the chair utters a loud groan, but no one heeds him. All eyes are fixed upon Madeline and Cora.

"You plotted to become John Arthur's wife?" pursues Madeline relentlessly.

"And his widow?"

No reply.

"You planned to keep him a prisoner?"

"Yes."

"And Lucian Davlin, your pretended brother, was your accomplice?"

Madeline turns swiftly towards her step-father, as she does so moving nearer toward Edward Percy.

"John Arthur are you satisfied?" she asks sternly. "Shall the knowledge of your disgrace go beyond this room? Do you choose to remain here and be pointed at by every boor in Oakley, as the man who married an adventuress, a gambler's accomplice, or will you accept my terms?"

John Arthur lifts his head, then staggers to his feet. "Curse you!" he cries. "Curse you all! What proof have I that these people will respect my feelings?"

"You have my word," replies the girl.

cooly. "These gentlemen of the Secret Service are not given to gossip. Mr. Davlin will have but little opportunity for circulating scandal where he is going. Mr. Percy and your wife will hardly remain in the neighborhood long enough to injure you here unless by your own choice. Your sister will scarcely betray you, and the rest are my friends. Choose!"

Pallid with rage and shame, the old man turned toward Cora.

"You see devil!" he screams, "this is your work!"

"No," interposes Madeline calmly, "it is your work, John Arthur! What you have sown you are reaping. Will you have all your guilty past, your shameful present made known? Or will you leave my mother's home and mine and cease to usurp my rights? Choose!"

Every eye is turned upon the old man and his questioner. Every ear is intently listening for his answer.

Every ear, do we say? No; one man is only feigning rapid attention; one mind is turning over quick possibilities, while the others await, with different degrees of eagerness or curiosity John Arthur's answer.

"Needs must when the devil drives," says the baffled old man turning toward the door. "I will go, and I leave my curse behind me!"

This is the moment which Lucian Davlin has watched. While all eyes are turned toward John Arthur he bends suddenly forward. He has wrenched the pistol from one of his guardians, and the weapon is aimed at Madeline's heart!

Madeline now addresses the fair adventuress, Claire again moves. She has been standing directly between Cora and her Nemesis. Now she takes up a position quite apart from her friends, and near the officer who guards Lucian Davlin on the right.

"Yes, for what purpose. And at whose instigation?"

Cora hesitated and Davlin moved uneasily.

"Don't think that you will damage your cause by making a full statement," suggested Miss Payne meaningly. Answer my questions please."

Again Cora glances at Davlin. Then turning toward Madeline she assumes an air of defiant recklessness, and answers the questions promptly. "I came at Lucian Davlin's suggestion, and because he had induced me to think that I could easily become what I am."

"And that is—"

"Mrs. Arthur of Oakley!" with a mocking laugh.

The old man in the chair utters a loud groan, but no one heeds him. All eyes are fixed upon Madeline and Cora.

"You plotted to become John Arthur's wife?" pursues Madeline relentlessly.

"And his widow?"

No reply.

"You planned to keep him a prisoner?"

"Yes."

"And Lucian Davlin, your pretended brother, was your accomplice?"

Madeline turns swiftly towards her step-father, as she does so moving nearer toward Edward Percy.

"John Arthur are you satisfied?" she asks sternly. "Shall the knowledge of your disgrace go beyond this room? Do you choose to remain here and be pointed at by every boor in Oakley, as the man who married an adventuress, a gambler's accomplice, or will you accept my terms?"

John Arthur lifts his head, then staggers to his feet. "Curse you!" he cries. "Curse you all! What proof have I that these people will respect my feelings?"

"You have my word," replies the girl.

CHAPTER XLIX.
AS THE FOOL DIETH.

Edward Percy is dying—was dying when they lifted him from the drawing-room carpet and gently laid him on the hospital table. He had been so frightened, so terrified, so utterly helpless, that he had not even the strength to resist when he was lifted. He lay there, his eyes fixed on the ceiling, his hands clasped in prayer, his lips moving as if he were saying some words of comfort to himself. He was dying, and he was not aware of it. He was dying, and he was not aware of it. He was dying, and he was not aware of it.

The wounded man moves feebly, and turns his fast dimming eyes toward the watcher. "I thought—I saw—some one," he says, brokenly, "when—I fell—"

His voice dies away as Clarence bending over him answers gently. "You mean the lady that stood near the door whose face was turned away?"

"Yes," in a whisper; "was it—my—wife?"

Clarence turns toward the window where Mrs. Ralston sits out of view of the sick man.

She moves forward a little. "Tell him," she says in a low voice.

Edward Percy is a dying man but his mind was never clearer. He perfectly comprehends the explanation made by Clarence. He had recognized the face of his wife when he lay bleeding at her feet. He closes his eyes and is silent for some moments. Then he asks in that dying half-whisper the only thing he ever will say. "You think—I will—die?"

"You cannot live!" replies Clarence gravely.

Again the wounded man shuts his eyes and thinks; then "How long—will I—last?" he questions.

"I can keep you alive twenty-four hours longer; no longer," says Clarence after a pause.

"Then—I must talk now."

Mrs. Ralston moves forward and he looks at her long and attentively. Then with a turn of his olden coldness. "You grew tired of me?" he said.

"Yes," she replies in a low sad voice. "I grew tired of you; very tired. But you too near the end; think of that?"

"I do," he said slowly. "But I can't alter the past—and I don't know—about the future. I want to see a—notary?"

"Don't you require the Hagerman?"

"What for? If I am dying—it's of no use to play hypocrite—I don't believe in your clergyman. I admit that—I wronged—you," he continues gazing at Mrs. Ralston. "And I deceived Miss Keith. If you could—can forgive me—I will take my chance—for the rest."

Mrs. Ralston bends above him with a face full of pity, but in which there is no love. "I forgive you Edward; and so will Claire, fully. But you did her little harm. She was not long deceived. Do you want to see her?"

"Yes; and don't let Alice—Cora, you call her—come near me!"

Night comes on and the end is very near. Over the dying face flits a malignant shadow and he makes a last effort to speak. Again the watchers bend nearer.

"I hope—they will—hang Davlin," he breathes.

The two listeners recoil with horror at the sound of the vindictive wish from dying lips.

These are the last words of Edward Percy. Slowly go the minutes and deeper grow the shadows. Again Clarence Vaughan bends above the couch and then he says, "Your vigil is ended, Mrs. Ralston. He is dead."

(To be continued.)

Dr. Mary Walker wants to lecture before Congress. It is believed, however, that Congress will practice self denial in this matter.—New York Mail and Express.

THE CONFERENCE
INSTRUCTIONS TO THE AMERICAN DELEGATES.

The United States Will Place Itself on Record as Favoring Arbitration.

New York, March 23.—A dispatch to the Herald from Washington says: There is reason to believe that an important proposition looking to the settlement of international disputes by arbitration will be advanced at the coming disarmament conference by the American delegates.

It was learned to-day from high authority that the credentials for and instructions to the American delegates are now being prepared by Secretary Hay and will be ready for submission to the president for his approval. He returns to Washington from his southern tour, and the instructions will be a complete exposition of the attitude of this government on the question of disarmament and arbitration.

Sir Julian Paucotote has been advised of his appointment as senior member of the British delegation. The British minister to the Hague will also be a member.

Mr. J. S. Edwards, the Russian ambassador to Great Britain, and the leading representative of the czar at the conference, will be assisted by Prof. Martens, professor of international law in the university at St. Petersburg, and probably by the Russian minister to the Hague.

Following the policy, which it seems likely that all the nations will adopt, President McKinley will appoint the minister to the Netherlands as one of the American delegates. Ambassadors White and Tower will probably be other members of the American delegation.

It was explained by a diplomat having knowledge of the present programme of the Russian government that upon the assembling of delegates a committee will be appointed to consider the subjects to come before the conference, and the order in which they shall be considered. So far as the proposition for a general disarmament of the nations of the world is concerned, it will be the duty of the American delegates to explain and to show that the United States, both from a military and a naval standpoint, is far below the armament it should have; and, besides, it was explained to me that this government does not intend to hamper in any way the inventive faculty of the people of this country. Nor is it expected that Great Britain will do so. In fact, the most important result which the officials expect from the conference will be the adoption of some plan for the reference of disputes to general arbitration, but the United States will have a plan of this character as well as any other nation.

The administration is strongly in favor of arbitration as a means for the settlement of disputes between nations, and while it appreciates that there are a number of considerations that can only be settled by war, still it is believed that many questions, which arise and are causes of much friction, can be arbitrated. The president is expected to inaugurate arbitration by his inaugural address and by subsequent declarations, but his administration has not attempted to negotiate arbitration treaties since the late war, because of the influence of war with Spain and the occurrence of war. In view of the assembling of the conference at The Hague it is thought by officials that the time has come when the administration can put itself on record in favor of the world as favoring arbitration.

Nova Scotia's Revenue.

Halifax, N. S., March 23.—Premier Murray delivered his budget speech yesterday. He estimates the probable revenue for the year ending March 31, 1900 more than last year, and the expenditure at $74,823. The subsidy from Ottawa will be $320,000. Royalties are expected to yield $320,000. This is $13,000 more than last year, and means that 400,000 tons of more coal will be raised the coming year than last. The heaviest item of expenditure for the next year will be on education, for which the government estimates $225,000. The vote for roads and bridges is $160,000 and $180,000 to be borrowed on capital account for bridges. The province has also borrowed $320,000 for the new government building in addition to the one now in use.

Deaths in Canada.

Kincaid, Col. March 23.—Lieut.-Col. Christopher R. Barker, for many years a resident of this city, died from an aneurism at his home in the town of Kincaid, aged 84.

Kincaid, March 23.—Dr. Hopkins, a veteran of the Fenian raid, died yesterday, aged 83.

Tilsoburg, March 23.—Chas. Thompson, druggist, died this morning, aged 63 years.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 23.—Mrs. Augusta Schmidt, serving a term in the Indiana woman's prison, has been paroled by Governor Mount and declines to accept her freedom. She is in prison for the alleged murder of Oscar Walton, the Cass county farmer, in 1894. She says she will not leave the institution until the judge jury, which tried her, acknowledge to Governor Mount that she was innocent, and they were in error when they passed judgment on her. She says officers say it is one of the very few instances in the criminal history of the state where liberty has been offered and refused.

A Fire at Cleveland.
Cleveland, Ohio, March 23.—Fire broke out early today in the Japanese department of the big Dangler & Co. Manufacturing company on Perkins avenue, and notwithstanding the enormous quantity of water poured into the building by fifteen engines, the structure, filled with valuable machinery and large quantities of manufactured goods, was practically destroyed. The high winds which prevailed caused the fire to spread to the plant of the Cleveland Machine Screw company, adjoining the Dangler works, and it was also destroyed. The loss on the Dangler works is conservatively estimated at $100,000, and on the Cleveland Machine Screw plant at $50,000. The machine screw works loss is fully covered by insurance, but the Dangler loss is only partially insured.

Three hours after the fire started a falling wall at the screw works fell, burying beneath it Lieut. Both of the company, No. 7, and it is believed he was instantly killed. His body has not been recovered.

Yukon Mail.

San Francisco, March 23.—The report from Skagway that the mail is being lost or destroyed at that place and that the Canadian mail carriers refuse to handle letters unless they are Canadian postage, is being positively denied by Assistant Superintendent Harry Lewis of the Railway Mail Service. He admits that a large amount of mail accumulated at Skagway during the winter months, which it is impossible to get over the summit in February.

Three carriers are already on the way to Fann, on the Yukon, by way of Skagway, Dawson, Circle City, Forty Mile and other camps. Mr. Lewis says the Canadian postal authorities never refused to afford every facility for the dispatch of letters going through their territory.

Frozen on the Prairie.

Wetaskiwin, N. W. T., March 21.—An Assyrian peddler, named Geo. No. field, was brought in yesterday from fifty miles east of Wetaskiwin in a state of collapse with both feet and legs badly frozen, having been wandering on the prairie for nine days without food. No field is in a very weak state, and there is no hope of saving his feet.

Foolish Salesman.

Zanesville, Ohio, March 24.—Wm. C. Daly, of Brockport, N. Y., travelling salesman for an eastern piano firm, after losing $1,000 here at gambling last night while drunk, took a pocket knife from the keeper of the gambling house and slashed his throat in an ugly manner. He is now hovering between life and death.

Steamer Canada Arrived.

Queenstown, March 21.—The Dominion line steamer, Capt. Macdon, from London, March 15, for Liverpool, arrived here at 8 o'clock this morning. She was thirty-six hours late owing to the starboard engine becoming disabled during a gale on Sunday.

A SOCIETY EVENT.
The Engagement of Lord Crewe and Lady Margaret Primrose.

The engagement of Lord Crewe to Lady Margaret, or, as she is almost universally known, Lady "Peggy" Primrose, is now an fait accompli. It had been whispered for some time in society that such an engagement was likely to come off; but until the official announcement, it was impossible for anybody to make any public allusion to it. The visit of Lord Rosebery to his daughter to Crewe Hall, the seat of Lord Crewe, apparently brought this to a climax.

For several years Lord Crewe has been regarded by more than one anxious mother as one of the most desirable parties. He has been a widower for a long time—indeed, his attachment to his dead wife was so entire, so profound, and his grief at her loss was so terrible, that many of his relatives thought he would never have married again. The years he has remained a widower are proof of the sincerity of both his grief and his sorrow—especially his grief, which is peculiarly knightly air—if it were permissible. In the long, thin face, in the fine eyes, in the expression, at once self-restrained and suggestive of resolution, deep thoughts, strong emotions—in the clear, alert, straight figure, there are all the qualities and distinctions of the best Englishman. An expression at once of hauteur and of shyness, completes the picture of that type, the uniqueness of which has struck foreigners alternately with admiration and with amusement during all the generations they have been considering the aristocratic and the travelling Englishman.

Lord Crewe was not born with the title, nor, indeed, was he legally heir to it. He is the son of Lord Houghton, who, as Richard Monckton Milnes, was known to the generation of literary men to which Carlyle belonged, and to the circle of the political and literary leaders of the greatest ornament. Lord Houghton was a litterateur of great gifts, wrote some very touching poetry—"Strangers Yet" is still popular in the drawing-room—and was, perhaps, one of the very best raconteurs of his time. His children inherited his literary tastes. Lord Crewe has published a volume of poems, and the Hon. Mrs. Henniker is well known as the authoress of several very charming novels.

As son of Lord Houghton, Lord Crewe inherited considerable wealth among the cashed of Yorkshire. In Yorkshire he has a fine old house, and at Preston a house in which Carlyle stopped on the way to speak in Scotland as head rector of a university, the speech which brought the poor old litterateur at once a letter of burning affection and admiration from his wife, and, a few hours afterwards, the news that she was dead. This was a very amusing and at the same time pathetic account of this visit in the essays of Professor Tyndall. Fryson is a ring fence of railways; the whistling of the engines kept the dyspeptic sage awake all night, and he was in such a maudlin temper that he wrote a letter to his wife, his mind to leave that day—whether his host liked it or not. Tyndall persuaded him to try a ride with him next day; for two hours the two philosophers dashed over the county; Carlyle was brought to a sudden stop, and, as he might, clothed in the "strange" long dress, given which Boehm represents so well in his statue at Chelsea, and Whistler so perfectly in his immortal picture, and smoking a church-warden pipe, he discussed delightedly for hours.

It was through a rich and generous uncle that Lord Crewe inherited his title. This uncle, unmarried and childless, always treated Lord Houghton as his heir. Lord Houghton was sent to Ireland as Lord-Lieutenant when the Gladstone Ministry of 1892 was formed, and when Mr. Morley was last Chief Secretary for Ireland, Lord Houghton was representative of a Home Rule Government, had rather a rough time—indeed, some of his letters were openly boycotted—but he maintained his equanimity—which, as they are semi-regal in style, required the distinction of manner which Lord Houghton so eminently possessed. His political friends felt that he was entitled to recognition; his uncle died—as Lord Houghton's vice-royalty was about to close—leaving him his wealth, and the Ministry at once conferred upon him the vacant earldom. Lord Crewe has a splendid mansion near Grosvenor in London, in that tiny but distinguished little street off Park lane called Tilney street—he is Lord Brampton, by the way, as a neighbor; entertains largely in both town and country, and is fond of the society of sportsmen, of the literature and of political life. He has many other wide-spread interests. The son-in-law of a Prime Minister that was, and that may be again, Lord Crewe will probably now fill great offices. He is just the man to be made Viceroy of India, in case there should be a vacancy when his party is again in power.

Lady "Peggy" Primrose, though she has been "out" for only a year or so, is already a well-known figure in London society. Lord Rosebery, with all his modernity in politics, has been quite a father of the old school in bringing up his daughters. They were brought up in what might almost be called seclusion, until the time for making their appearance in public came. They were educated at home, and under the charge of a lady of great refinement and many accomplishments. This lady did not live in Grosvenor Park, but in a house close by, and came over every day to attend to the education of her young charges. The young ladies do great credit to their teacher. Their manners are quite perfect—at once modest and self-possessed.

The two sisters made their debut together at a ball, given by Lord Rosebery at his house in Berkeley square the season before last. All London was there—social, artistic, political. The two young girls stood at the head of the stairs, and were introduced by their father to all his guests. They did the duties of hostesses as well as if they had been at all their lives. In appearance, the two sisters are singularly like each other, and singularly like their distinguished father. They have his strongly-marked features, and a good deal of his reserve of expression. The rich brown coloring of the complexion is a reminiscence of their mother, who, as everybody
